Britain Tells U. S. Ambassador Norman H. Davis American Naval Program Might Make Bad Impression On Nations On Eve of Parley.

LONDON, Sept. 20.—The government told United States ambassador-at-large, Norman H. Davis, on his recent visit here, the American naval building program might make a bad impression on other nations on the eve of the disarmament conference.

This authoritative explanation was advanced after reports from Washington that Britain had requested the United States to delay its construction schedule.

It is understood that Mr. Davis was informed that Britain was not herself worried about American construction but feared others might be.

This was qualified by a statement that there might be apprehension in England if a naval race developed between Japan and America in which case Britain might be forced to enter the competition.

U. S. to Bring Navy Up to Treaty Limits — Contracts Let for $238,000, 000 Program and Under No Circumstances Will They Be Called Back.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—President Roosevelt intends to go ahead without restriction on the $238,000,000 programme to build the United States navy up to treaty limits.

Reports have been current from abroad that suggestion had been made to Norman H. Davis, United States ambassador, that there be some abandonment or curtailment of the building programme.

CLASS 'B' CRUISERS

It appears that any suggestion that may have been made to the United States by Great Britain would concern the four Class 'B' cruisers called for by the programme, which would lay down ships up to the last pound of the 1000-ton limit, with six-inch guns.

Those familiar with past conference understand that England desires a smaller maximum on the class 'B' type, and feels that this is a matter of principle.

Eighteen Machines Confiscated As Officers Start Determined Drive to Smash Far-Reaching "Sucker" Scheme

Sweeping down in a surprise raid on cafes, cigar stores, candy kitchens, drug stores and newsagents in Edmonton on Tuesday afternoon, city detectives under Det. Sgt. Bert Peterman made the first move in a province-wide drive to stamp the flood of "sucker money" which has been rolling out of Alberta via the slot machine racket in the past few months.

Warrants were only issued just before the raiders started, but despite the surprise nature of the move word of the police activities was quickly relayed to slot machine headquarters, and in several places the police arrived to find that the machines which had been operating a few minutes previously had disappeared. A fleet of fast moving cars was making the rounds picking up machines to prevent their confiscation where possible, while in other cases frantic telephone calls from the owners of the machines to operators of the premises or shovels back in the vaults.

Warned to STOP

In every case the owners made the rounds of all places where machines were left after the raiders ceased activities, and warned the operators to cease trading in the slots from that time on. In some cases the machines were found to be in operation, and in some cases the machines were found to be in operation, and in some cases the machines were found to be in operation.

OUTLAW SHOT BY RELATIVE

VARGA STRUCK BY WIFE DOWN WITH AXE

DRUMHELLER, Alta., Sept. 20.—(By The Associated Press.)—Mrs. Varga, killed by her husband in a fit of jealousy Monday night at Wayne, was struck from behind as she walked from kitchen to bedroom by the sharp edge of an axe. Further investigation showed later Tuesday reveal. The first blow smashed the skull, while the second blow was aimed at her as she lay face down on the floor.

According to Joe Nemark, friend of the dead woman, Mrs. Varga had announced her intention of leaving her husband that night. Nemark had arrived at Wayne on Monday afternoon from Calgary, after disposing of his car business on Highway 100 west, with the intention of getting home to the home in the morning.

Nemark stated that he was in the company of Mrs. Varga at about eight o'clock Monday night, when once again the question of a separation arose. Varga, he alleged, was slightly under the influence of drink and this was substantiated by a young man, living in the district, who met Varga earlier in the evening walking the tracks in the region of his home.

That Mrs. Varga tragically was snatched on Monday night is evidenced in the condition of the body, when examined by Coroner Dr. G. H. Wilmore, who gave as the cause of death a fractured skull and a fractured spine. The body was found at about twelve hours. The body was found at about eleven a.m. Tuesday. No inquest will be held.

Ill. He Leaves Sir Hubert Wilkins To Go to Hospital—Taxi Returns Empty Reporting He Dropped From Sight.

CAPE TOWN, Union of South Africa, Sept. 20.—Bernie Balchen, noted explorer who has been in the news when he was supposed to report for an appendicitis operation, finally showed up this morning at the Vahls hospital. Physicians said his condition made an operation necessary this afternoon.

During the period of his absence Balchen left a touch by telephone several times with Sir Hubert Wilkins, his fellow explorer, and other associates. He and Sir Hubert are en route to the Antarctic via the Lincoln Ellsworth expedition.

Balchen left the ship on which he and Sir Hubert arrived at 4 p.m. and took a taxi. The taxi returned empty reporting he had dropped from sight.

Newspapers who boarded the ship this morning, however, were told that Balchen was still on board. The ship was still at anchor, awaiting news of Balchen.

Persons aboard the ship said the alarm was given at 10 p.m. Tuesday after seeing a taxi containing Balchen and Wilkins. The taxi was seen leaving the ship at 11 p.m. Tuesday, and disappeared.

HIGH TRIBUTE PAID TO LIVE STOCK RAISER

Swift Canadian Executive Expresses Optimism As to Future Industry

Optimism as to the future of the livestock industry in Alberta was expressed yesterday by George S. Robertson, manager of Swift Canadian Co., Ltd., Mr. Robertson, in discussing the outlook for the packing industry, paid high tribute to the courage of the raisers of livestock.

"The man with some livestock on his farm has been in much better condition, and has been able to weather the last few years, better than his neighbor who has devoted his entire attention to one crop only," he said. "Meat animals have been in much better condition than the farmer who has devoted his entire attention to one crop only."

"The good farmer never quits, and it is due to his spirit that the packing industry has gone through the trying period of the last few years without practically ceasing to employ. For example, recent figures show that employment in the packing business has been within approximately 10% of normal, whereas other industries have been down from 20% to 50%."

"Speaking of the plants for the quarter century in business in Alberta, Mr. Robertson said:

"Starting the week of September 10, we shall hold open house every day until the 30th. Monday is the 20th anniversary of the plant. We hope that the plant will be a success and will come and see this packing plant every day. While the days of the week have been set apart for certain events, the attendance on these days is not limited. Every one will be welcome every day."

"The plant which will travel there by street car and have their carfare refunded. Passengers will have a transfer on leaving the car at the packing plant, and this transfer will be valid for the street car tickets. An added incentive is the fact that the plant which receives a street car ticket which bears a number corresponding to the car ticket will receive a package of products with his carfare."

ALLIES

Trust one of the French-Canadian brethren to say it gracefully. President Roosevelt, observes Hon. Ernest Lapointe, is planning faith in the future of the Government of Canada has gone into alliance with the grasshopper.

WORK NEEDING TO BE DONE

Quite a number of Canada's unemployed men could be profitably employed in digging subways, and danger points in and around centres of population, and roads and railway cross on the level. The tragedy at Clover Bar is a grim reminder of that fact.

Nothing is more certain than that thousands of these level crossings will have to be made safe by the separation of the grades of highway and railway. For twenty years that has been plain beyond controversy. Canada's highway has adopted, as a national policy, a progressive program for the safe-guarding of the more obviously dangerous level crossings over a term of years.

That was not done. Safe-guarding railway crossings has been treated more as a casual than as a seriously urgent matter. While the building of a new highway, the fault for that does not all lie with Dominion governments past and present. But it is to the Dominion the public have to look for the driving force that will set protective measures in motion, if need be against the lethargy or even the opposition of provincial, municipal and railway interests.

There could never be a more favorable time for getting such a program under way than when tens of thousands of men are clamoring for work. If the construction of public works is to be made a means of helping to ease the present situation—and it should be—the type of public works on which money can better be spent, and none that has stronger claim to attention than that of safe-guarding of dangerous railway crossings.

GOOD NEWS OR BAD?

The substance of the provincial crop report is that the wheat yield in Alberta will be smaller and the barley crop smaller than that of last year. At first blush, remembering the crop curtailment agreement that was signed in 1928, it is hard to tell sure whether he should keep at the news, or cheer.

It used to be that a good crop was considered a special blessing from the hand of Providence. The churches held rousing thanksgiving services and tea meetings, when the walls and altars were decorated with sheaves of roots and flowers. The Dominion parliament appointed one day in the fall to be observed as a National Day of Thanksgiving, when everyone was urged to be grateful because the good earth had yielded a plentiful supply of food for man and beast.

Now there seems to be a doubt about the matter. Officially Canada is not sure whether a bounteous crop is a mark of the favor of Providence or another load of grief for our sorely-stricken people. The churches still hold the seasonal services and feast gatherings, and Thanksgiving Day still stands on the calendar, but to be quite consistent we shall this year have to celebrate the occasion with misgivings and reservations. If we already have too much wheat why be glad that we have another hundred million bushels to add to the embarrassing surplus, or sorry that it is not even more?

There is something positively brutal about rejoicing because another harvest has turned out fairly well and at the same time accepting as the dictum that because we have so much to eat a third of our population cannot get enough food. At there is something wrong somewhere. Intellectual honesty demands that we do one of two things. Either we should stop praying for good crops and giving thanks for them, or we should readjust our economic machinery so that good crops would be a blessing all round and not a curse.

NO INTEREST SHOULD BE ASKED

Edmonton and Calgary have applied, through the Provincial Government, for a loan of $300,000 from the Dominion, with which to meet the cost of relief. The cities asked for $500,000 each, but the provincial authorities cut down the amounts. Perhaps suggesting that if they asked for "too much" they would get nothing.

A half million dollars to each city would not be too much for the purpose, though it might look that way from distant Ottawa. Edmonton is spending $30,000 a month on relief, and has been all summer. The demands will necessarily increase, with winter in Calgary as much in the same position. Last year each city borrowed $200,000, and that did not cover the outlay. The balance should be made up in the new loan.

Presumably the intention is that the cities shall issue treasury notes for the amount they need, on which interest will be payable. That feature of the applications is one Ottawa might as well overlook. Sooner or later, it is altogether likely, the Dominion treasury will have to give relief loans made to municipalities, principal and interest. The municipal taxpayers are already foot the bill.

The short, simple and effective way to meet these requirements would be for the federal treasury to issue a million dollars in crisp new Dominion bills, and hand the issue to each city. The federal officials could satisfy their book-keeping scruples by charging these up as loans, if they wanted to, in the meantime. But there should be no interest demanded for the use of the money, above a nominal rate to cover the cost of the paper.

The Dominion has advanced, quite properly, some millions of money to the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, with which to keep its shops and employes employed, on which loans no interest is to be asked until the enterprise is able to pay five per cent dividends to its shareholders. The cities, on the other hand, deserve quite as much consideration at the hands of the federal Government as the C.P.R. need the help quite as much, and would make quite as good use of the money. They, too, should get relief money, or relief work money, without interest.

SIDE GLANCES - By George Clark

By J. S. Cramer

British opinion is undergoing a change about Hitler, as the hold of the German Nazi chancellors on the affections of young Germany is made manifest. Lord Rothermere, who might be expected among the last to show signs of change, writing in the Morning Post in his own paper, the London Daily Mail, says:

Something far more significant than a new government has arisen among the Germans. There has been a change in the very nature of the national spirit like that which took place in England under Queen Elizabeth. Youth has taken command.

Almost every bicycle met on the roads bears the swastika pennant. Through the picturesque streets of the little towns towns stride the sturdy brown-clad young men, and their brown-frocked girl helpers, who have taken over the rulership of Germany from the ineffective old generation.

I maintain that youth has a right to rule. Mussolini succeeded to supreme authority in Italy at the age of 30. He was a vigorous young man. Together they have made their country the best-governed state in Europe. Today while the German and Italian governments consist of ten or a dozen vigorous and alert men in the prime of life, a meeting of the British cabinet brings together grey-haired old gentlemen, the average age of the British cabinet is 65.

It is surprising statement from a British peer of Conservative leanings, himself about the age of 60. He is a vigorous young man. Only the other day our own active and able Sir George Perley in his capacity as acting Prime Minister at the age of 50 was forcing his resignation because he had reached the deadline at 65.

Rothermere points out in the Daily Mail that this column pointed out the other day in connection with the Quebec-Canadian struggle on our higher civil service and militia appointments, that the sympathy of the overwhelming majority in the near-monopoly that the Jewish minority established in government appointments during the Weimar Republic.

In the last days of the pre-Hitler regime there were twenty times as many Jewish government officials in Germany as had existed before the war. In the last days of the Weimar Republic, the Jewish minority was in the German administrative machine. Three out of four of the Jewish officials were in the German civil service, and the rest in the German army and navy.

There are in Berlin more than 3300 lawyers. Of these, 2700 are Jews. A great percentage of the judges are Jews. Of the doctors in Germany, 80 per cent are Jews. Of the engineers, 70 per cent of the money was Jew controlled. Only one per cent of Germany's 650,000 people were Jewish, yet according to the statistics one per cent was controlling most of Germany.

Far from the Nazis being a minority of scowling fanatics, they are a terror over a crowd and resentful population. Rothermere says: "I am convinced by the testimony of my own eyes and ears, that the sympathy of the overwhelming majority of the German population are strongly with this organization of stalwart young patriots. It would be futile and unfair to resent this revival of the German spirit."

Whether official England will follow the swing of public opinion Hitler-ward remains to be seen. That probably depends chiefly on Hitler.

Nash's Magazine for September contains a long article on the part of Robert Bernays, British M.P. It is captioned "Little Man—What Now?" after Hans Fallada's recent novel of Germany.

After a review of the changes that have taken place in German life and mention of the photographs of Hitler staring from half the shop windows in Berlin.

But where is the strength in Hitler—these weary eyes, that receding jaw, that drooping head, that sagging skin, that thinning hair, that theatrical costume might provide for an impersonation of Charley Chaplin. Dr. Johnson said that if a man had a bad face, he should not let it be seen.

Between the two flags, Murray recited the oath of the regiment and the men, pointed out the enormity of the offence committed and announced that unless discipline was restored he and his officers would themselves stop the result, even at the risk of their lives.

Dismissing from his house, Murray advanced to the Amber Regiment, took hold of the regimental colors, and placing them on the ground at a distance apart, ordered the regiment to march between the two flags. There was a moment's hesitation, but discipline prevailed and the regiment marched as if one man between the two flags. Murray recited the oath of the regiment and the men, pointed out the enormity of the offence committed and announced that unless discipline was restored he and his officers would themselves stop the result, even at the risk of their lives.

CHARGE CIVIC RELIEF MONEY IS SQUANDERED

period of the investigation he explained that the time at which the present relief management took charge was holding an inquiry into the present management was conducted.

QUOTED MERCHANT

The speaker felt that a fully qualified clothing merchant, or other person who had had experience in the clothing line, should be put in charge of this particular branch of the relief service.

I regret that you would consider this question because you are going to hear of it in November. There are hundreds of thousands of dollars being squandered, and I do not see any favorable results forthcoming.

Chairman Ald. J. W. Findlay declared that a "wide open investigation" is being held, and that all possible evidence would be adduced.

Supporting his claim that money and relief labor used in their place, Civic Union No. 30, through its representative, laid the blame for the state of the council for severely reducing the minimum of the city engineering department to the point where employees had to be let go, coming from the present investigation, he stated.

Dr. L. A. L. associate member on the committee and official of the Unemployed Married Men's Association, asked the delegates whether it was not a fact that it had cost the city $400,000 to operate the relief in 1932, and whether it was not a fact that it was in a position to pay the figure.

PROPOSALS OUTLINED

Dealing extensively with the "relief" question, the speaker outlined the following proposals: 1. That the city should have a minimum of $100,000 a year for the relief of the poor, and that the city should have a minimum of $100,000 a year for the relief of the poor, and that the city should have a minimum of $100,000 a year for the relief of the poor.

He said, in part: "We find an appropriation for relief for the year of $100,000 a year for the relief of the poor, and that the city should have a minimum of $100,000 a year for the relief of the poor, and that the city should have a minimum of $100,000 a year for the relief of the poor."

His Mission Of Death Is Frustrated

ALONZO CARASS.

A Cuban student who is said to have been offered by a lady in the "ABC," a secret society of Cuba, to go to the United States and murder Lofgren, convicted killer during the regime of Gerardo Machado, has been refused permission to enter the United States and will be sent back to Cuba. He was discovered at a stowaway on the S. S. Morro Castle and placed in transit.

WANTED ASKED TO WORK

"I wanted asked to work and I didn't offer myself," was the reply.

Mr. McKee continued that despite the fact that many men had refused to labor for the city in return for their relief, that department in the majority of cases made sure that the families of such men did not suffer as a result of this attitude. They were continued on relief.

TANK TRUCKS CONSIDERED FIRE HAZARD

Wilma Schaffer, School-girl Fire Victim, Buried Sunday

BY A. F. KEY

DRUMHELLER, Sept. 20.—Provincial department of works will be approached to draft legislation for the regulation of parked gasoline trucks by Drumhellier council, following recent fires in the district. Heavy increase in the number of such vehicles on the Saskatchewan highway has resulted in the creation of a new fire hazard, as Drumhellier is situated as a convenient center in which to refuel, and at almost any time of day or night, tank trucks can be seen parked in the business district.

Wilma Schaffer, nine-year-old schoolgirl, who on Thursday last was burnt to death when her clothes caught fire while she was passing a coal oil in a store, was laid to rest in Drumhellier cemetery Sunday afternoon following service in the town schoolhouse. The Rev. R. T. Hunter of Drumhellier officiated with six school chorists: Mary Hinde, Helen Kline, Lillian Kline, Annie Potter, Eva Ellis and Shirley Ellis acted as pallbearers.

TO PLANT TREES

Drumhellier is in the market for 200 green ash trees, with possibility of a four-year contract involving the trees if leaders warrant placing the larger order.

USE TAR SANDS

Tar sand sidewalks, gravelled streets and sidewalks are included in the works program of the 1933 civic annual program. Thomas Hughes, president of Drumhellier, and Ole Kampen, local Drumhellier, are planning to have a trial order of tar sands. Following the sidewalk program, plans were prepared for graveling all streets within the municipality.

NO DISEASES

A clean bill of health was presented to council Monday night by M. J. Dr. C. H. Whitmore who reported that no cases of infectious diseases had been reported in recent milk tests also declared excellent quality from all dairies.
